PHILOLAOS

My father, the Greek sculptor Philolaos, passed away in 2010. But the fact that he was such a prolific and gifted artist made the hardship of losing him somehow less painful. He left us not only his immense influence, but also his body of work, which perpetuates his vision and talent, inspiring us and strangers alike. Philolaos designed concrete chairs for his house in the 1960s and this modern plastic version was made last year, from the original cast. I'm planning on releasing a limited-edition series of them. In the meantime, my cat Ash loves it.
